

VOGUE

DREAM STATE

The Art Production Fund's Gala Benefit

By Chloe Malle

Photographed by Mimi Ritzen Crawford

(Left to Right) Lauren Santo Domingo and Laure Hériard Dubreuil; Erin Fetherston; Alessandro Luongo and Maggie Betts; Jeff Koons; Amy Astley

(Left to Right) Fabiola Beracasa and Bettina Prentice; Allison Sarofim; Yoko Ono; Zani Gugelmann; Olympia Scarry and Neville Wakefield

Much like last year's Urban Hoedown, guests at Monday evening's Art Production Fund's Gala Benefit took the "I Dream of..." theme and ran with it. From cofounder Yvonne Force Villareal's I Dream of Jeannie ponytail to Lisa Perry's star-and-moon printed maxi dress to hypnosis-inducing Marc Jacobs swirls on Arden Wohl.

Rachel Feinstein, in flowing rain-colored chiffon, approached the bar and inquired about the specialty cocktail ready for consumption. "That's a Basil Lime Daiquiri," the bartender replied.

"I'll take it!" decided Feinstein matter-of-factly before exploring the artist booths and stopping to get a temporary bicep tattoo designed by Shahzia Sikander.

Held on the sixth floor of ABC Carpet and Home, the evening was a symphony of patterns and textures. Ladies who brought out their printed spring frocks for the occasion looked like subjects of a latter-day Vuillard painting standing against Madeleine Weinrib's ikats and suzani prints.

Another perk of the location? The food, catered by downstairs' ABC Kitchen. "Wow, this food is actually really good," said a dumbfounded guest as he shoveled a tartine of housemade ricotta, rhubarb compote, and grilled bread into his grateful mouth.

"I follow Yoko on Twitter," said Klaus Biesenbach, who introduced Yoko Ono, one of the evening's two honorees (Richard