For his Spring 2017 collection, fashion designer Jason Wu drew inspiration from Swiss artist, Ugo Rondinone. “The vibrant colors of his creation ‘Seven Magic Mountains’ left an indelible mark on me for Spring,” he told W. That inspiration was clear in the pops of neon that were present throughout his playful, refined collection. In contrast, the show took place in a series of conservative offices in the members-only club Spring Place, accessorized with mid-century furniture and flowers by Putnam & Putnam.
